Introduction

Description	Customized plant extract blend is a mixture of several different plant extracts in a certain ratio according to the customer's needs, the product has a variety of effects to meet the customer's needs. Each plant extract included in the blend is chosen for its unique therapeutic properties. For example, if the goal is to create a blend for immune support, extracts from plants such as echinacea, elderberry, and astragalus may be included. If the aim is to support relaxation and sleep, extracts from plants like chamomile, valerian, and passionflower may be used. Customized plant extract blends offer the advantage of combining multiple plant extracts that can work synergistically to provide a comprehensive and targeted approach to health and wellness.
